EIGHTH ANNUAL MEETING OF CONTRIBUTORS.

Tuesday, January 4th, 1859.

At a meeting of the contributors to the Hospital of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, held this day, pursuant to the charter, at the Office 524 Walnut St., Isaac Hazlehurst, Esq., was called to the Chair, and Dr. Kenderdine, was appointed Secretary.

The report of the Board of Managers, together with the annual statements and accounts was presented, and referred to the same Board for publication.

The following gentlemen were elected Managers for a term of three years, to supply the places of those whose terms expired this day.

SEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

December 30th, 1858.

TO THE CONTRIBUTORS :

In once more addressing the contributors, the Managers have abundant reason for gratitude to Him whose tender mercies are over all His works, in the retrospect of the seventh year's progress of the Hospital under their charge. They are happy to find, that, notwithstanding the embarrassment and discouragement incidental to their limited means, the annual statements and other interesting details communicated to them, afford decided evidence of a continued increase of usefulness in the charity, as intelligently and zealously administered by the Officers of the Institution.

Three hundred and seventy-two (372) inmates; have been under treatment in the course of the year, three hundred and forty-two (342) of these having been admitted since the first of January. The daily average number of patients in the house was twenty-seven, and the average term of residence about twenty-nine days. Of the out-patients, nearly thirty-five hundred have been attended to at the Hospital or at their own homes.

According to this account there has been an increase of some thirty-four in-patients and fifteen hundred out-patients, over the number treated in the year 1857.

The already great and rapidly growing extent of the out-patient dispensary, has for some time past occupied the attention of the Managers; and has led to the adoption of measures, not yet in operation, which, in all probability, will still more rapidly develop its importance generally, and its especial value to that portion of the city in which the Hospital is placed.

As, unfortunately, no change for the better has thus far been effected, in the amount of room for patients in the house, the increase in the number of these patients is quite as large as could be expected ; and, small though it be, yet shows a material improvement in the practical capacity and efficiency of the Hospital beyond that of every previous year.

The average number of inmates having been about twenty-seven, and the largest number in the house at one time thirty-six, we may suppose that the thirty beds have generally had their full allowance of occupants, although there has been less frequent overcrowding than there was last year. Notwithstanding this greater freedom from injurious crowding, the cases have succeeded each other more rapidly, the average duration of treatment in the wards being shortened ; and thus a larger number of patients were admitted in the same length of time. In this way, it is thought, that a greater amount of good has been effected among those for whose necessity the Hospital is best adapted. The number of chronic cases, especially of rheumatism and consumption, which generally remain the longest and are the least benefited by hospital influences, has considerably diminished ; while that of the acute cases of disease and of injury, which are most urgent in their character and most likely to derive advantage from hospital attendance, has correspondingly increased.

The greater part, if not all, of this increase appears to be due to the comparatively large number of cases of recent accident brought to the Hospital from time to time throughout the year, and especially within the last four months. The growing frequency of this form of suffering in the neighborhood, must continue to require a correspondingly larger share of the Hospital accommodations, as the district gradually becomes occupied by new dwelling-houses and new factories of all kinds, with their crowds of tenants and operatives; but a still larger demand upon the surgical wards has already begun, and is likely to grow upon us, in the shape of injuries produced upon the numerous railroads, that are now traversing so many of the streets in all parts of the city, and above all in the district which is nearest to the Hospital.

The number and serious nature of these cases already treated in the Hospital, and certain to be brought there hereafter, would seem to establish at least a moral claim, on the part of the Hospital, upon the favorable consideration of the corporations owning these railroads, and for an amount of material aid from them which has hitherto been offered by one or two alone.

The following table will afford an idea of the manner in which this obligation has been incurred in the past year, by exhibiting, in one view, the cases admitted from the different railroads. They happen to be fewer in number than on some of the previous years, but are the only cases in which these particular details were noted.

Injuries received by workmen and others in factories, constitute the greater part of the remaining recent accident cases. Although not belonging to the same category as the railroad cases, they yet suggest the idea of the utility of the Hospital to these large establishments, not only in restoring their hands to health when that may be impaired, but in affording immediate succor, and often effectual aid, to those whose lives and limbs have become endangered through the wounds received in the exercise of their factory employment. Hence the Hospital may reasonably expect, from these sources, as well as from the railroad companies, a large amount of active sympathy and positive assistance.

But it is not alone to the numerous railroads and large factories, and the new buildings of all kinds which are constantly going up, that the Hospital must continue to owe many of its most necessitous and deserving patients. We have repeatedly called attention to the situation of the Hospital, two miles from any other similar establishment, within the confines of a ward which contains the largest day-laboring and indigent population in the city, and therefore, in the midst of a neighborhood filled with persons of both sexes, who would gladly avail themselves of its charity could they hope to be received. That the Hospital is very often obliged to close its doors against such applicants, is unhappily too clearly proved by the numbers who are turned away from week to week, and whose disappointment doubtless serves to discourage other and often still more serious sufferers from urging their equal if not stronger claims.

This inability to satisfy the wants of the crowds who would otherwise obtain admission, and for whom the institution was expressly founded, must inevitably continue to embarrass and distress the officers and best friends of the Hospital more and more until a new and proper building is erected.

If the want of room however, were the only difficulty, the Managers might perhaps content themselves with annually pointing out the opportunity of doing good in one of its most indisputable forms that is thus daily thrown away. But it is well known to all who are familiar with the only house at our disposal, that it is utterly unfit for the purposes to which the ingenuity and self-sacrificing benevolence of the officers, are unceasingly burdened, in striving to adapt its small, ill-ventilated, badly arranged and imperfectly warmed apartments. Nor are these defects of a character which alterations of the present inconvenient structure would be likely to remove in any degree commensurate with the expense that would be required. The idea of occupying the old country mansion upon the grounds, which has gradually become filled with patients, as a regular hospital building, was not contemplated by the generous donors of the property; nor was such a plan intended by the founders of the institution, except as a strictly temporary expedient to be resorted to only in the earliest infancy of the enterprize, and before the necessity for a proper house would be likely to occur.

The rapid progress of this necessity, and the absence of facilities of many kinds which it so urgently demonstrates, oblige the Managers to appeal, more earnestly than ever, to all who know what it is to be invalids themselves, or have hearts to feel for the suffering father, mother or child—for the stricken sister or brother,—to come forward with their offerings in behalf of the charity, which here calls with a hundred tongues upon their holiest sympathies and their inmost sense of right and duty.

A Committee of the Board of Managers has been instituted, with authority to collect contributions to the building fund; and arrangements are in progress for a renewed effort to secure enough to justify the commencement of the work upon the new edifice within the coming year.

The Managers would urge the noble example set us by our brethren of two of our sister cities, in the spacious and admirable Hospital of St. Luke, of New York, and in the scarcely less excellent establishment of the Church Infirmary and Home of Baltimore, upon their brethren of Philadelphia. They believe these latter to be as anxious as their neighbors to maintain the reputation for Samaritan efficiency already established in the priority of our own enterprize and of the amount of practical good effected by it, even with its straitened opportunities, in the seven years of its existence; and they sincerely hope that this reputation is not now to be endangered for want of the additional aid which can alone afford the proof that it continues to be deserved.

Until the plan and location of the new buildings have been determined, it will be difficult to effect much in the permanent arrangement and improvement of the hospital enclosure. Some progress has been made, however, in these matters, and a convenient and comfortable stable, which had become indispensable, through the ruinous condition of the old one, has been put up, at a moderate cost; and an old rope-walk, which disfigured and obstructed a portion of the grounds, has been removed.

The expenses of the year, including salaries and improvements, were about six thousand and seventy-eight dollars. Deducting the outlay required for the erection of the new stable and for other indispensable improvements, the expenditures of the Hospital proper have not exceeded five thousand five hundred dollars. This is less, in proportion to the excess of non-paying patients, than those of 1857; and maintains the average cost of each patient, including twenty-six who paid, at three dollars and sixty cents ($3 60) per week, although the average daily number of inmates was three less than in 1857. As a matter of course, also, the out-door dispensary has grown in cost along with its large increase in importance; and since this branch of the Hospital is not likely to diminish its demands or to abate their growth, the Managers must look for a corresponding augmentation of the annual contributions to support this and other multiplying claims.

Unfortunately, the collections for this year have fallen behind those of the last, thus far; and we must once more appeal to the friends of the Hospital in the city for further additions to our current funds.

In the midst of these anxieties it is very pleasant to be able to acknowledge some highly valuable donations. Our thanks are especially due to Messrs. Powers and Weightman, for a large amount of valuable medicines and chemicals of their own manufacture; also to Mr. Powers, for several books for the use of the patients; to Dr. T. F. Betton for a collection of surgical instruments; and to Dr. Drayton, for a considerable number of standard works on medicine and surgery for the use of the medical officers.

The customary services on Sunday afternoons have been continued by several gentlemen, as usual, who have been kind enough to attend. In addition to these and other occasional religious services, the patients have enjoyed the benefit of the visits and regular ministrations of the Rev. J. Rudderow, who was appointed Chaplain in January last, and has officiated throughout the year. The Managers gladly avail themselves of the opportunity to express the high estimate which they place upon the co-operation of their valued Chaplain and his lay coadjutors in their good work ; and to thank the latter especially, for the assiduity, with which, through a succession of years, they have sought, as volunteers in a holy cause, to fulfil one of the main objects of that true charity, which regards the souls no less than the bodies of the sufferers brought within its reach.

We are indebted to Dr. Grier, senior resident, and to the superintendent, Mr. Greetham, for the various and interesting statistics appended to this report. The reader is referred to these statistics for reliable details as to the results, on record in the books of the Hospital, of its operations among all the sick and wounded intrusted to its care.

In conclusion, the Managers take pleasure in expressing their confidence in the ability, zeal and integrity of the attending and resident medical officers and of the superintendent of the Institution. They would gratefully acknowledge the patience, with which these gentlemen have submitted to the discomforts and inconveniences of the present Hospital building, and the fidelity with which they have all labored, under many disheartening impediments, for the welfare of the objects of their kind attention.

Before taking leave of the contributors, in their seventh presentation of the results and of the many unsatisfied wants of their still struggling enterprize, the Managers feel constrained to make a final appeal to the friends of the sick and the wounded, whom poverty, as well as the paralyzing hand of disease and injury, is driving in increased numbers to their doors.

We wish to remind the benevolent of all denominations, and especially of our own Church, that, with our present moderate resources, the out-patient dispensary may continue for some time to extend itself in spite of inadequate accommodations, even for that limited purpose; but the grand object of a general hospital, for patients, curable and incurable, "without exclusion of creed, country or color," who are already waiting in crowds to be admitted, which might be in some measure attained with the income now at our command, were a hospital building equally at our disposal, is, without such a building, utterly impracticable. In the temporary structure which has hitherto afforded our inmates and their attendants the only shelter within the compass of our means, the purposes of a charity as far-reaching as our charter calls for, cannot possibly be accomplished.

We ask the friends of the afflicted poor earnestly to consider the simple facts just stated, and would implore them to remember the blessing that awaits him "that provideth for the sick and needy."

REPORT OF CASES TREATED IN 1858.

The statistics of the Institution show that during the year 1858, there have been three hundred and forty-two patients admitted. These, in connection with the thirty remaining in the Hospital at the time the last report was made, increase the number to three hundred and seventy-two, (thirty-four more than that of 1857.)

Three thousand four hundred and sixty out-door or dispensary cases have been prescribed for and furnished with medicines by the Resident Physicians, either in the hall of the Hospital or at their homes, according to the severity of the disease. Showing an increase of thirteen hundred and twenty-four over those of last year, or more than treble the number that were attended to on the first year (1854) in which a record was kept of the dispensary practice.

Of the above number of in-door patients, one hundred and seventy-seven were medical, and one hundred and ninety-five surgical. Of the dispensary or out-door cases, two thousand four hundred and twenty-one were medical and one thousand and thirty-nine, surgical.

In the following abstract of the house cases, a number of those in the second and third columns eloped, or were removed by their friends, or were discharged at their own request, before sufficient time had elapsed for a beneficial result to be obtained from treatment.
